Bengaluru, February 14: Azim Premji University is hosting a two-day symposium on "Practising Inclusive Education in India: Listening to the Discerning Voices" on February 16 and 17.

The symposium will bring together inclusive education practitioners and create opportunities for partnerships between school leaders, disability advocates, special educators, and researchers to deliberate on the future of inclusive education in India.

The event to be held at the University’s Bengaluru campus will aim to document, engage, and debate on topics such as inclusive pedagogy, intersectionality, and systemic challenges and enabling factors to implement inclusive education.
